What To Say (And When) During Your Remodel:

A Feedback Guide For Homeowners

Why Feedback Matters

Remodeling your home can stir up a lot of emotions, excitement, uncertainty, even overwhelm. If you're feeling unsure, frustrated, or simply out of the loop, you're not alone, and you're not expected to navigate it alone either. It's our job to guide you through the process with clarity and care. That's why feedback matters. When something doesn't feel quite right, this guide is here to help you say it, with confidence and support. Sharing your thoughts early and often helps us stay aligned, solve problems quickly, and make sure your home reflects not only your needs, but how you want to feel in the space.

The 5 Key Feedback Moments

After the Initial Design Concept Review
- What you like
- What feels off
- Any big goals we might be missing

After Materials Are Selected
- Colors, textures, and finishes
- Lighting or hardware preferences
- Budgt alignment

After Demo Begins
- Surprises in layout
- Timeline questions
- New ideas sparked by seeing the space open

Mid-Project Check-In
- Communication preferences
- Cleanliness or daily wrap-up
- Schedule or access concerns

Final Walkthrough
- Finishing details
- Touch-ups or adjustments
- What exceeded expectations (we love hearing that too!)

How to Say It! Even Feedback works best when it's:
Timely: Don't wait too long
Specific: "The hallway feels narrow" > "I don't love this"
Respectful: You deserve a great outcome, and so do we—let's work together
